COPS MUST WALK CURB LINE.

PIPER ANNOUNCES NEW RULE IN POLICE DEPARTMENT.

They May Leave the Curb Only to Try Doors and in Case of Trouble-Piper Denies Being Originator of the Rule-New Commissioner Jacking Men Up.

Police Commissioner Partridge put into force a new system of patrol yesterday Hereafter policemen are to walk their beats along the curb line and are to leave it only 'v try doors or in case of trouble The order applies to the night tours as well as to the day tours. It gave the force a slight shock.

Col. Partridge explained in the general order that the new rule is on account of the many complaints of policemen loitering on posts." Hereafter a policeman cannot stay in the shelter of a doorway without rendering himself liable to charges.

The rule is entirely a new one in the Police Department. Something like it was in force while President Roosevelt was Commissioner, but that simply ordered policemen to walk in about the middle of the sidewalk. That rule went out with Roose-

Police Commissioner Partridge had left Police Headquarters before the new order become known. Capt. Piper, the new second deputy, announced it. It was suggested that Capt. Piper was the originator of it. Capt. Piper said, however, that t had been thought of by someone else, who had suggested it to Col. Partridge.

"I believe, " said Capt. Piper, "that it is the better way to have a fixed rule about a thing and to describe just how a policeman shall walk his post.

"Under the new rule a policeman can see and be seen. He can be found easily. It does not give lawbreakers and sneak thieves any advantage, because the policeman's range of vision is wider. It will effectually do away with loitering, in my opinion, for there isn't going to be such temptations for talks with friends on the curb where it's so easy to be seen. That is just what it is designed to do away with.

At the recent conference on police by the special committee appointed by the Mayor, Rear Admiral Erben gave a talk on the London police force. In London they have had the curb line order for some time. The new order is believed to be a result of that conference

PIPER JACKING THE MEN UP. No More "Little Games," Loltering or Slouching Around.

District Attorney Jerome went to Police Headquarters yesterday morning and had a talk with Col. Partridge. Upon his return, he commended the methods of the new Deputy Commissioner, Capt. Piper.

Mr. Jerome said that when Capt. Piper police stations and examines blotters and | caused, it is said, by an experience he had jacks up slouchy policemen on their beats, he is raising the morale of the force which has been allowed to retrograde through the laxity of the patrolmen's superior offi-

"There's been a great deal of fun poked a. Capt. Piper," said Mr. Jerome, "but, of course, the stories have all emanated from patrolmen and other policemen who have been caught with the goods on them.

"Now, as to his visit to the Church street station. He went behind the desk and asked the sergeant for his blotter. 'I'm Capt. Piper, the new Deputy Commissioner,' he explained. 'I want to see how things are going here. How many men have you?" 'I don't know,' answered the sergeant.

was suddenly interrupted. There were four men in nearby cells.

"'All right,' said Capt. Piper, 'you fill your lantern and have it in its place,' and he went back to the sergeant's desk and got the blotter again. How many men have you?' he asked again.

"Twenty-two, replied the sergeant.

"Look again,' directed the Deputy Commissioner. 'You've got spaces there for twenty-six.' The sergeant owned up that he had. He had left four blank spaces.

for twenty-six.' The sergeant owned up that he had. He had left four blank spaces to fill in later, in which to make entries, we'll say, showing that the captain, for in-stance, had been in and reported at such-and-such an hour, when he hadn't. Of course, it's against the rules to leave these blanks. Capt. Piper is going to have that sergeant up on charges. It's important that the blotters should be accurate, because they are frequently needed in criminal trials and must be correct.

*From Church street Capt. Piper want to O'Reilly's Oak street station and found a

"'How many prisoners have you got?' he asked the desk sergeant.

"Three,' replied the sergeant. There were four in the cells, the fourth a bum brought in by the doorman so that he could its the doorman, work while the doorman. do the doorman's work while the doorman snoozed. When Capt. Piper saw the bum that individual was taking his turn at sleeping.

Then he found a patrolman standing in a doorway on Park row.
"What are you doing there?" asked

Capt. Piper.
'I'm waiting for lunch, see?' responded the patrolman.
"Well, I'm Capt. Piper, the new Second

Deputy Police Commissioner, said Capt. Piper. The patrolman tried to salute with both hands and both feet, and then fell into his slouch.

Get your heels together and stand at attention when addressing your superior officers,' commanded Capt. Piper. 'Now officers,' commanded Capt. Piper. 'Now go and patrol.'

"Later he stood at the corner of Broadway and Franklin street and watched the patrolman stationed at the crossing stand talking to another policeman who had his back up against a building. They talked for some minutes and then parted. Capt. Piper walked over to the crossing man and for some minutes and then parted. Capt. Piper walked over to the crossing man and told him to call the other patrolman back. He did. Capt. Piper then revealed his identity. 'One of you two was off his post; which was it?' he asked.

"Now, these are conditions that prevail in a demoralized department. Col. Partridge is occupied with administrative work; he can't do the work that Capt. Piper is doing, and shouldn't any more than I should attend police courts and have deputies at may desk."

Dr. Joseph F. O'Connell, who has been police surgeon in Brooklyn for fourteen years, will be retired at the next meeting of the Board of Police Surgeons at his own request. Dr. O'Connell is suffering makes unexpected visits of inspection to from a dilation of the muscles of the heart, not long ago when Policeman John R. Collins made an assault on him

> Dr. O'Connell had examined Collins and reported him unfit for duty because of excessive use of alcoholic stimulants. On his report Collins was dismissed from the force. Collins then went to Dr. O'Connell's house and, drawing a revolver, said:

"I mean to kill you."

Dr. O'Connell, though he is a small man, grabbed Collins before he could fire and threw him down the front stoop.

Later Collins sent his wife around to apologize and the doctor agreed not to prosecute if Collins would surrender his revolver to Capt. Bedell at the Adams street station. Collins did so in the pres ence of the doctor, but shouted at the same time that he "would kill him yet." Capt. Bedell locked him up and Dr. O'Connell made a complaint, on which he was sent to the penitentiary for a year.

n Unusual Under-Price Offering of Fine Colonial Furniture One man stands at the head of this craft in making fine furniture, in reproduction of classic designs of the best English and French periods. In addition to being correct copies, this furniture is better made than the originals-better materials, better workmanship, better finish.

It is exactly this furniture, from this acknowledged best maker, that we offer to-day at

A Quarter Below Our Regular Prices The fact that the furniture is so elegant, and that it appeals only to people of artistic taste, accounts for a slight over-production, for which we have undertaken the distribution.

The incident is quite unusual in goods of this character. The line comprises dining-room, bedroom and library furniture of the finest sort. Most of the pieces are matched to make a uniform furnishment for any one room. Of some styles, however, we are unable to complete the suite; but the missing pieces can be had to order at our regular prices.

This is perhaps the best under-price offering of fine furniture we ever made at this season of the year. We give short descrip-

PRISON SHIP JERSEY FOUND.

MANY CONTINENTALS PERISHED THEREON IN THE REVOLUTION.

Lies in Two Fathoms of Mud and Water in Brooklyn Navy Yard-May Not Be Raised Because Work on New Battleship Connecticut Would Be Delayed.

Pile drivers, building a section of the ew ways for the construction of the new battleship Connecticut at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, discovered yesterday the famous English prison ship Jersey, in which several nundred Americans, prisoners at the time of the Revolution, were martyred while the British held New York. Historical societies, Government surveys and other researches for many years ave failed to locate the ship. The halfburned hull is lying in about two fathoms of mud and water in front of Main street, about 500 feet from the dock. Civil Engineer Bellinger, who is in charge of the work of constructing and launching the ways or the Connecticut, said yesterday that here was no doubt that the hull is that of he Jersey. Unless removed part of the new battleship will rest on the hulk. The timbers of the Jersey are believed o be in good condition. Borings proved that they are of oak and teakwood. It is estimated that it will cost $500 to raise the hulk. Officials at the navy yard think that the naval authorities will not permit the hulk to be raised, because of the delay t would cause. The construction of the vays is already behind time.

When the Government purchased the and now occupied by the navy yard for the purpose of establishing a station, in 1801, t was almost all swamp. The hulk of the prison ship was then a long distance from he shore. As the navy required more pace the swamp was filled in and the old hulk was covered. In 1850 not a part of the hull was visible, and all trace of the ship was lost.

The history of the prison ship and the manner of the death of the American prisoners became of interest to the public some years ago when the skeletons of 300 men were found in the yard. That these were part of the martyrs who had been confined in the Jersey was established, and subsequently the bones were buried with impressive ceremonies in Fort Greene Park. The finding of the ship strengthens the theory established years ago that the prisoners were executed aboard the ship and removed to the land, after which the ship was destroyed by fire. Whether other prisoners were burned with the ship is a matter of corjecture, and will never be known unless the naval authorities give permission to have the hulk raised.

THE NEW BRITISH AMBASSADOR Formal Presentation to the President

Exchange of Friendly Sentiments. WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.-Sir Michael Herbert, the new British Ambassador to the Inited States, presented his credentials to President Roosevelt this morning. He was accompanied to the President's house by the members of the Embassy in the full uniform of their respective rank. The Ambassador was received in the President's room on the second floor of the house which he temporarily occupies and the presentation was made by Secretary Hay Addressing the President, Ambassado Herbert said:

Ms. President: I have the honor to place in your hands a letter from the King, my august sovereign, accrediting me as his Ambassador to the United States of America. I have long had a profound admiration for the people and institutions of the great country over which you so ably preside, and no task could be more consenial to me or more in conformity with my personal sentiments than that of carrying out my sovereign's commands. I fully realize the difficulty of replacing my eminent and deeply larrented predecessor, who strove so steadfastly and so successfully to draw closer the bonds which unite the two countries, and whose honesty, integrity and other high qualities gained for him in so marked a manner the respect and confidence of the American people. But I undertake this succession, trusting in your indulcence, and no effort shall be wanting on my part to further augment the present friendly feeling between the two great English-speaking nations which he did so much to bring about. In conclusion, sir, allow me to express my very sincere wishes for your personal welfare and for your rapid restoration to health.

To this the President replied:

Me. Ambassador: It affords me sincere gratification to receive from your hands the letter whereby your sovereign accredits you as his Ambassador to the United States, and a welcome you in that capacity. It is the letter whereby your sovereign accredits you as his Ambasador to the United States, and to welcome you in that capacity. It is especially pleasing to me that his Majesty's choice has fallen upon one who, by previous official residence in this country, is so agreeably known here and who is, moreover, so well fitted by acquaintance with the workings of our Government and by personal association with our people to carry out his Majesty's announced wish that the conduct of your mission may contribute to maintain and strengthen the good relations which so fortunately exist between Great Britain and the United States. I am happy, in return, to assure you of the same high purpose on the part of this Government and of our earnest endeavor to advance in all attainable ways the good will and the mutual esteem that mark the intercourse of the two nations. Your tribute to the memory of your lamented predecessor's eminent qualities awakens a responsive sentiment among us, who so si neerely deplore his death with sense of personal loss. It is my earnest hope that you, following in his footsteps, will win no less measure than he the confidence and regard of the American Government and people, and thus continue his good work ent and people, and thus continue his good ork.

WASH STREETS-WOODBURY. He Tells Doctors What the Department

Is Doing-No Hunkersliding. Talking about clean streets to the Society of Medical Jurisprudence at the Academy of Medicine last night, Dr. Woodbury, Commissioner of Street Cleaning, said: Commissioner of Street Cleaning, said:

Cleanliness is next to godliness. On which side of godliness it stands has not been decided, but it is certainly health's own right hand. Dr. Lederle, the Health Commissioner, is willing to let me have 50 per cent. of the credit of the health in our city. The greatest proportion of our deaths are among children under 5 years of age. They are nearer the pavement: they live on it and play on it.

Of the legal sapects let me say that if the laws as they stand were enforced, the streets would be clean. One way to enforce the law is to teach it, and you doctors would be the best teachers.

In Manhattan and The Bronx and Brooklyn we have almost one thousand miles of streets best teachers.

In Manhattan and The Bronx and Brooklyn we have almost one thousand miles of streets to clean. The conditions vary. In the Eleventh ward there are 46,438 in habitants. In one section of the ward, bounded by Broome and East Houston streets, Broadway and the East River, we pick up daily from the streets, not including the contents of ash cans, eighteen tons of garbase. We have an army of nearly five thousand men. From February to October of this year we got out 530,853 loads, or about 736,832 cubic yards of ashes and rubbish.

Some of the rubbish taken to the dumps on the river fronts comes from houses where there have been contagious diseases. The rubbish is sorted over and much of it carted back to the lowest sort of tenement cellars, where it is again picked over, separated, bundled and sold. This sort of rubbish should be destroyed and the way to destroy it is to burn it—turn it into heat, light and power. We have building at Forty-second street and the North River a plant which will burn the rubbish and give us 250 horse power. It will pay for it-elf.

The department has paid $730,000 in a year to take the cleanings out to sea—six miles east and south of the Sandy Hook Lightship. Since last February we have used the ashes and rubbish to fill in Riker's Island. We have made twenty-five screes of good graded land worth at least $10,000 an acre. In another year, if we are let acone, we will have sixty-three and a half acres of land worth at least $10,000 an acre. The city is laid out wrong. There should be double the number of streets running the length of the city, but it is just right for the Street Cleaning Department. Our carts have more streets on which to get to the river fronts. Then, too, the loaded carts go down hill and gome back up hill when empty.

This is true of all but that section of the city between Forty-seventh and laith streets, west of Central Park West. The Holy Land they call it in the department. The West Side Protective Association went to Albany and got a bill passed that tied Col. Waring's hands. In all that vast area we have no dump. The long trips of the loaded carts hurt the horses and harness and driver.

From a medical standpoint the streets should be looded to remove the disease germs. But salt water isn't bandy and fresh water

Once we were content just to copy the Derby blocks of other hatters-we do that still.

Do more now-last season sold more of the block we worked out ourselves than of the block of any other hatter. This Fall we've several blocks of our own, besides all those worth copying.

costs money and we have no money. We borrowed from the Fire Department all its second-hand and condemned hose. It is doing duty now, tied together with rags. The thing to do is to wash the streets on the East Side and cut down the death rate.

The men in the department are working, every one of them. As my driver aptly putsit: "Well, Major, there ain't no hunkersliding in the department now."

"And what's that?" I ask.

"Why, the men don't sit down on the curb when they smoke their pipes."

KENTUCKY CHURCH UNION.

Northern and Southern Presbyterians to Take Communion Together. LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 13.-For the first time in thirty-seven years the Northern and Southern synods of the Presbyterian Church in Kentucky will sit down in communion together. The Northern synod will begin its meeting to-morrow. The Southern synod began its session to-night. It had been arranged to have a sermon and communion service at the First Presbyterian Church by a member of the South ern synod to-morrow morning. A spirited discussion at the business session to-night resulted in the communion being post-poned until Wednesday in order that the members of the Northern synod could ioin in a union service.

The Rev. Charles R. Hemphill was elected moderator at the meeting of the Southern synod to-night and Dr. C. T. Thomson, Her Sea Code Not Up to Date.

Letters on Him Addressed to "Dr. E. S Cunard," Albany, N. Y. well-dressed man of middle age found dazed at the corner of South and Roosevelt streets last night. Officers Murphy and Fletcher, thinking he was drunk. took him to the station house. There acting Captain Sprecklen decided that the man was seriously ill and sent him to the Hudson street hospital, where he was said to be suffering from paralysis of the brain. In his pockets there were several letters addressed to "Dr. E. S. Cunard," Albany. N. Y., and $41.

At the hospital it was said that the cause of his condition could not be determined.
